

Going Romance 2018: information for participants (presenters have received a slightly extended version)

Dear all,

We're very happy you will be joining us for Going Romance, one of the main venues for Romance linguistics in Europe. We hope you'll spend a great time with us and look forward to enlightening talks, brilliant posters and great discussions :-)

This information package contains – we hope – most of the information you will be needing for your travel to and stay in Utrecht. We strongly advise you to print it or save it on a portable device with sufficient battery life ;-)

If we did forget something, please let us know! You can reach us at going.romance@uu.nl.

All the best,

Sergio Baauw, Jan Casalicchio, Francesco Maria Ciconte, Roberta D'Alessandro, Frank Drijkoningen, Ellen-Petra Kester, Bert Le Bruyn, Luisa Meroni, Manuela Pinto & Henriëtte de Swart.

Getting to Utrecht

Your preferred mode of transport to come to Utrecht is the train :-) Utrecht Central is nicely located in the city centre and all relevant locations for the conference are within walking distance (in general not exceeding a 1 km walk). If you're coming by car and you have no car parking booked with your hotel, please contact Bert (b.s.w.lebruyn@uu.nl) for extra information.

If you need to plan your trip, please check the NS website (www.ns.nl) or download the NS app (info). Some useful information:

- Return tickets in the Netherlands require a return the same day.
- If you prefer an e-ticket, it will have to be printed or loaded in the NS app. Showing a pdf on an electronic device will make the conductor frown.
- Major stations in the Netherlands have small gates you'll have to open with your ticket. There are two ways to open them: with a chip or a QR code. Most gates allow you to use either option.
- Direct trains between Schiphol airport and Utrecht Central have a frequency of 4 per hour and take about 30 minutes (the relevant trains have Venlo or Nijmegen as their final destinations). If you need to travel between 22:00 and 07:00, please make sure to check your train schedule. Frequency drops during these hours and the schedule is slightly different from day to day.
- If you want to take a taxi from or to Schiphol, we recommend UTC (www.utc.nl, 030-2 300 400). Note that trains are as quick, are environmentally friendlier and don't get stuck in traffic jams (especially relevant around rush hour).

Navigating in Utrecht

The indications below have been compiled under the assumption that most participants are comfortable walking about 1 km (or 2 km if you're walking from the station to the Maliehotel). If you need special assistance, please contact Bert (b.s.w.lebruyne@uu.nl).

Google maps/Apple maps work quite well. We consequently focus on the things they're not particularly good: telling you how to leave the station, giving you a general idea of the layout of the city, warning you about which buildings you cannot enter from the street side.

Leaving the station

Perhaps the most important challenge when arriving in Utrecht is to find the exit of the station. In the explanation below, we assume you're either heading for the conference venues or a ho(s)tel in the city centre. If you're staying at the NH hotel in the station neighbourhood or the Park Plaza, you'll want to leave the station at the exit that is opposite the one we're indicating below. The description will however also be useful to you given that the trajectory we're describing below is probably the one you'll be following to go to the conference venues. All venues and ho(s)tel are within walking distance.

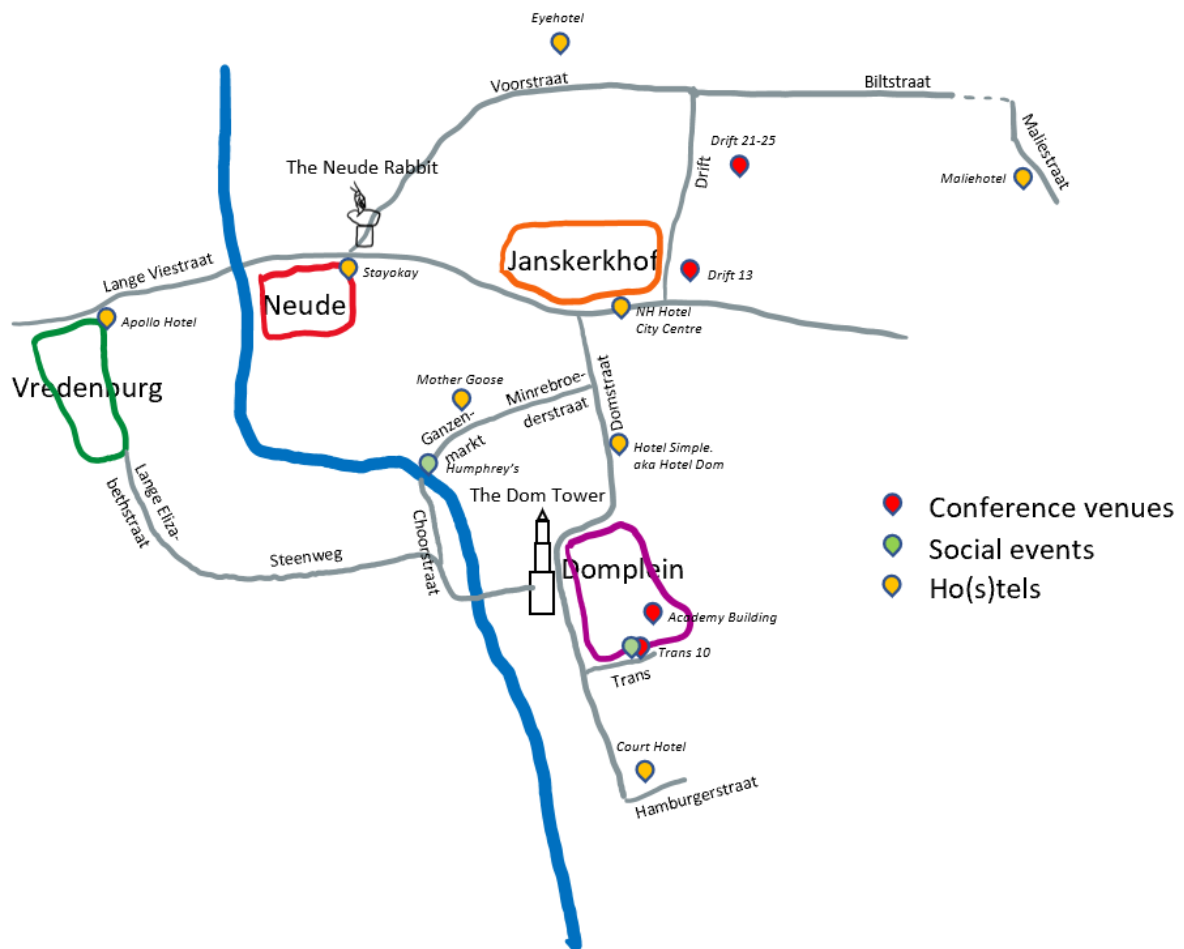

Here's the guide of how to leave the station. Note that rather than using street names we use shop names as the station is separated from the city centre by a labyrinthic shopping mall that will remain under construction until 2020:

The station has several exits. You want to choose the one that is located on the City Centre side. The easiest way to decide is to look at the shops: it's the exit closest to 'Broodzaak' (a bakery-like shop) and 'Leonidas' (a chocolates shop). Once you are past the small gates, take a left and leave the building. Cross the square to enter a building complex called 'Hoog Catharijne'. The entrance of the complex is squeezed between 'Douglas' (a perfume shop) and JD (a sneaker shop). At the entrance, head left and then right passing by 'G-star' on your left and 'Inglot' on your right. Go straight ahead and take the first escalator down (the escalator is located between 'Sissy-Boy' on the left and 'WE' on the right). Once downstairs, continue straight, heading for the exit ahead (you can ignore the one on your left). You'll be passing by shops like 'The burger federation' (on your left), 'Yves Rocher' (on your right), 'T-mobile' (on your left), 'Rituals' (on your right), and 'Zara' (on your left). Once you're outside you can congratulate yourself on having survived the first and most important challenge of navigating in Utrecht.

Getting to your ho(s)tel and the venues

For your convenience, we have created a customized google map that you can consult here. At the end of this information package you will also find a more tourist-oriented map with the city's highlights.

To get a feel of the city we however think it's easiest to think of it as organized around the four squares indicated in colour on the strongly simplified map below: Vredenburg (the one you get to when you exit the station), Neude, Janskerkhof and Domplein. All ho(s)tel and venues are situated close to the squares or the streets that connect them.

Important note about the venues in Drift 21, 23 and 25

The entrance of Drift 21, 23 and 25 is through the garden of the University Library located on in Drift 27, cf. the picture below. Drift 13 has its own entrance.

Lunch options for the Microcontact workshop

On Tuesday, lunch is not offered but we do want to give you some suggestions on where you can get food in the neighbourhood of the afternoon venue :-)

Janskerkhof

On the square itself, you will find two small kiosks selling Dutchified Italian-like sandwiches. The owners do have an Italian background. Fun fact: the two kiosks are in competition and are not always friendly to one another.

On the other side of the square, you'll find The Street Food Club serving all-day breakfast.

If you like Poké bowls, you can also go to their neighbours on the Domstraat: Poké Perfect.

Voorstraat

In the Voorstraat you can find quite a few places to eat. We start with places closest to Drift and move towards Neude:

- De Ontdekking (Voorstraat 110): sandwiches, salads, etc.
- Sushi Wang (Voorstraat 98): Japanese food
- Gys (Voorstraat 77): biological food & drinks
- Viavai (Voorstraat 75a): Italian sandwiches and tapas
- Ana's Kuzin (Voorstraat 62): Turkish food
- Anan Saigon Streetfood (Voorstraat 23): Asian streetfood

General dinner options

There are plenty of places to visit for dinner. To have a good overview, please take a look at www.iens.nl. You will find several options in the Voorstraat, on Neude and on the Oudegracht.

If you want something out of the ordinary, you can try:

- Bistro Karel V: one of the restaurants in Karel V, a hotel located in a former palace where Charles V (or Carlos I depending on which dynasty you're following) stayed in 1554. Reservations are recommended for this one: <https://karel5.nl/en/bistro/>.
- Kimmade Vietnamese Street Food: <https://www.kimmade.nl/street-food>. One of the smallest restaurants in town. You might have to put up with queues (no reservations possible :-)) and slightly unfriendly staff but the food is nice and not expensive.

ONTDEK UTRECHT!
